FotoFocus Announces Open Call for First Juried Exhibition

Accompanies Fall Symposium on Tech's Impact on Photography and Politics

The Carnegie in Kentucky (pictured) will host the FotoFocus Symposium and Juried Exhibition this fall

(Cincinnati, OH — April 16, 2019) — FotoFocus is pleased to announce its first open call for submissions from artists working in the Ohio, Kentucky, and Indiana tri-state area at the intersection of photography and new media. The open call launches today and will accept submissions through June 17, 2019.

The artists selected from the open call will be included in the juried exhibition, AutoUpdate (September 13 – November 16, 2019), which accompanies the FotoFocus Symposium, AutoUpdate: Photography in the Electronic Age (October 5, 2019). The symposium and exhibition will take place at The Carnegie, Northern Kentucky's largest multidisciplinary arts venue, and will address digital technology's impact on photography and video, and its power to politically manipulate a media obsessed world.

"We are committed to giving local and regional artists new opportunities. We make sure they continue to be a part of the global cultural dialogue and stay connected with other artists working in the field," says Mary Ellen Goeke, FotoFocus Executive Director.

The artists will be selected by a group of guest jurors across tri-state institutions, including Carissa Barnard, FotoFocus (Cincinnati, OH); Matt Distel, The Carnegie (Covington, KY); Alice Gray Stites, 21c Museum Hotels (Cincinnati, OH, Lexington and Louisville, KY); Jo-ey Tang, Beeler Gallery at Columbus College of Art and Design (Columbus, OH); and Michael Vetter, Newfields (Indianapolis, IN).

AutoUpdate: Photography in the Electronic Age Symposium & Exhibition Theme

The Carnegie, 1028 Scott Blvd, Covington, KY

FotoFocus is pleased to present its first juried group exhibition, AutoUpdate (September 13 – November 16, 2019), and an accompanying day-long symposium, AutoUpdate: Photography in the Electronic Age (October 5, 2019), in partnership with The Carnegie, Northern Kentucky's largest multidisciplinary arts venue. The exhibition and symposium will address digital technology's impact on photography and its disruption of art making and news cycles in a media obsessed world.

Inspired by the prescient 1994 Aperture special edition Metamorphoses: Photography in the Electronic Age, which both envisioned fantastical uses and dire consequences of programs like Adobe Photoshop, AutoUpdate presents a much needed update on how digital technologies have continued to affect our understanding of photography as an artistic medium and in our current age of "post-truth" and artificial intelligence. The Symposium examines photography and film in today's current artistic and political climate. This series of lectures and panel discussions invites international artists and speakers to review photography's part in the current global crisis of information exchange; the fate of documentary filmmaking in a "post-truth" age; and will offer a historical and philosophical assessment of digital imaging, past and future.

AutoUpdate will be on view from September 13 – November 16, 2019, with a reception and performance on October 4, 2019.

The all-day Symposium, AutoUpdate: Photography in the Electronic Age, will take place on Saturday, October 5, 2019.

Both events will be held at The Carnegie and are free and open to the public.
