FotoFocus brings Postmodern photographer Roe Ethridge to the Cincinnati Art Museum for a visiting artist series lecture. Ethridge's photography creates visual discourse on the nature of art and commercial photography by orchestrating visual fugues inspired by media culture, adapting, replicating and recombining images to create subversive still-lives, portraits and landscapes, like bowls of moldy fruit or self-portraits with a black eye.

A public reception follows.

7 p.m. Free, but early arrival recommended. Fath Auditorium, 953 Eden Park Drive, Eden Park,
